living in their parent's basement is that they have a limited attention span, and they have a hard time staying committed to their goals. The whiners over at see that point, but from a medical/food industry perspective, I only see this as a nice juicy cash cow. Seriously, you have to see it from the inside out. There is more money being made here than what most people can even fathom. Politicians won't tackle this, but for a few measly talking points or policies like no super sized drinks. What a joke. There is literally a metabolic apocalypse happening right now on this planet and a handful of people are making unbelievable profit from it. The policies that are in place and the news reports that are distracting the world keep things flowing like normal though, while Ronald plastic wrap was used, but apparently it was also pretty common for soldiers to just roll up the muzzle end of their rifles with condoms. ",
